Lamont - Chipman Couple United In Lovely Bridal Ceremony

LAMONT — Multi-hued blossoms formed an attractive setting in the Lamont United Church for the recent marriage of Miss Edna Doige and Mr. Walter Melnyk.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Doige of Lamont, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Melnyk of Chipman, pledged their vows before Rev. E. Nix.

Mr. Doige gave his daughter in marriage.

For the wedding she chose a gown of white lace. The floor length skirt was fashioned to reveal an inset of pleated net. A buttoned bolero designed with fly-point sleeves, and a small collar modified the strapless bodice of her dress. A pearl-encrusted coronet held her finger-length veil in place.

She wore a double strand of pearls. Her matching earrings and the pearl necklace were gifts of the groom. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of red roses.

Miss Clara Doige, sister of the bride, and Miss Audrey Cameron, the bridesmaids were identical gowns of pale green and mauve metallic net, respectively. Their gowns were styled with bouffant skirts, strapless bodices and buttoned boleros. They wore matching gloves and head bangles, and carried colonial bouquets.

Dr. William Wachke and Mr. Stephen Antonuk attended the groom, and Mr. Cecil Doige and Mr. J. Melnyk were the ushers.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. R. H. Shears, and during the signing of the register, Mr. Hugh MacPherson sang "Oh, Joy Be Thine."

Receiving about 250 guests at a reception held in Chipman, Mrs. Doige chose a navy crepe dress with a navy hat and gardenias pinned on her shoulder.

A triple-tiered wedding cake, surrounded by bouquets of spring flowers, was set upon the bride's table.

Dr. M. A. R. Young of Lamont proposed a toast to the bride.

For a honeymoon to the West Coast the bride donned a mauve bouc knitted suit and black dress accessories. A winter white coat completed her travelling ensemble.

When they return Mr. and Mrs. Melnyk will make their home in Chipman.

The Senate To The Rescue

(From the Calgary Aristocrat)

Three cheers for the Canadian Senate! It has proved that it can indeed be a champion of the people of Canada and that it is not just a rubber stamp for the government.

Parliament is revising the Criminal Code. Justice Minister Garson, on behalf of the government, had the code re-written, new sections added and obsolete ones deleted. A Senate committee is going through his draft of it. It made three changes which are highly important and greatly beneficial to the people. It is to be hoped now that the whole Senate will concur in these improvements, and that the Commons will also ratify the changes.

Mr. Garson wanted the law of contempt of court left as it is. The Albertan has objected to it. It gives a judge power to pass any sentence he wishes on any person who in his opinion expresses contempt of his court. And there is no appeal. The public is completely at the mercy of the judges. They are not governed by law, in this respect, but by their whims.

The Senate committee wants to establish the right of appeal. If the offence is committed in the court the sentence may be appealed, it says. If it is committed out of court, both the sentence and the authority of the judge may be appealed. High time.

Then the Senate committee objected to a section designating the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, along with the army, navy and air force, as the "armed forces" of Canada. This established the RCMP as a military force, Senators thought. They didn't like it. Nor do we. The internal police forces in Canada must always be civilian in every respect. Canadians don't want the "armed forces" doing civilian police duties. That's not what they're for. Leave the RCMP alone, we say.

And thirdly, the Senate committee voted to change the section on treason, over Mr. Garson's vigorous and specific objection.

He had set it down as treason if any Canadian passed information to another country that "is likely to be prejudicial to the safety or interests of Canada." And treason, of course, is punishable by death.

This is altogether too broad, said the Senators. If anybody sent agricultural information to Argentina which would help her to compete more strongly against Canadian wheat or livestock in world markets, it would "likely be prejudicial to the interests of Canada" and therefore the guilty person could be hanged. What's Canada coming to?

Define the information you don't want sent out of the country, the Senators told Mr. Garson. And so, in the meantime, they voted to put this section in a place in the code where the maximum sentence can be only 14 years.

On this one the Senators didn't differ through with their point. If the wording is too loose to justify hanging a man, isn't it too loose to send him to prison for 14 years? Why not re-write it altogether? If it's im- properly worded for the protection of the people's rights, why be satisfied with a 14-year penalty in place of hanging?

Pierre Martin, president of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, representative some 20 million farmers, urges the renewal of the wheat agreement. The agreement, he says, is not only important to wheat producers and consumers, but also points the way to greater price stability for other products.

Farmers' Unions in Saskatchewan and Manitoba have asked the federal government to underwrite wheat prices should a new wheat agreement set a price lower than the western farm unions believe adequate.

The Canadian Pacific Railway reported a net earning last year of $30.8 million a $3 million increase over 1954. C.P. earnings were at an all-time high of $457.8 million as compared with $428.3 million in the previous year.

Those Income Tax Reports

Before very long we are going to be urged to get our income tax returns in early. So this may be as good a time as any to bring up a few points which we should keep in mind in case we get the feeling that we are badly done by.

The most important of these is that we should remember that while it is the federal government which does the collecting, and therefore gets the blame when we feel that the tax is taking a greater share of our personal income than we are happy to part with, it is the provincial government which gets a very substantial share of the proceeds.

The latest year for which complete figures are available is that ending March 31st, 1955. In that year the income tax department collected through personal and corporation taxes in Alberta approximately 71 million dollars. Of this sum $40,780,000 was collected as personal income tax from individuals. In that same period, not including the dominion subsidy of more than two million dollars, the province received as their share under the tax transfer agreement, $17,343,000. This amounted to $20.34 per person, and accounted for 16% of the total provincial revenue.

If the dominion had not agreed to collect this for the province, they could have reduced personal income taxes by 42½% or if they had cared to spread the reduction over both personal and corporation taxes, have allowed a reduction of 25% right across the board.

It is interesting to note that the sum the province received as their share of the income taxes which the dominion collected was greater than the total amount spent by the provincial government for education in that year.

Under a new agreement between the provinces and the dominion, the provincial government will receive more than 25 million dollars for the current year. This will amount to something more than 20% of their total income from all sources. This works out to nearly $29 for every man, woman and child in the province, or $145 for the average family of five persons.

Some will remember the time when the provincial government collected its own income tax. The last year it did this was 1941-42, when the total amount they received was $2,241,000, or $2.84 per person, or $14.20 for the average family of five persons, representing approximately 8% of their total revenue.

In other words, the province is having the dominion collect more than ten times as much in income taxes for them as they ever collected for themselves.

From a practical point of view, most people will agree that it is just plain good business to have this tax collected by the one agency. It avoids the necessity of setting up two collection services, and is therefore cheaper. Perhaps what is more important it avoids the confusion of having taxpayers make out two sets of returns under two sets of regulations, which would undoubtedly differ.

But what should be kept in mind by the taxpayer, if he feels his taxes are too high, is that all of the blame cannot fairly be put on the shoulders of the federal government. The provincial government is getting credit for spending the money. They claim they have reduced taxes. It is only fair that they should receive their full share of any discontent which is felt by the taxpayer at this or any other time.

Note and Comment

The leaders in every community talk only when they have something to say.

The Brazilian minister of agriculture has stated that his country could become self-sufficient in wheat within three years. Consumption now totals about 67 million bushels annually and this year production was roughly 20 million bushels.

I'd read about Jasper Avenue and the City of Edmonton but what a sight it was when I came to see the midnight sights! Women tramps, young and old, being chased by wolves—cops running up and down 97th street—crowds of people going nowhere and grunting there. Edmontonians just don't know what it is to spend one evening at home. Yes, Edmonton is really a place to see! HARRY LEE

COYOTES VS. MICE

I notice in a recent issue, that the municipal council has voted to make application for the institution of coyote control in this district.

Before we get heading into destroying coyotes, let's stop long enough to consider that two or three chickens or a lamb doesn't feed a coyote for a week. He eats something else besides and that something else is mice and gophers!

It has been proved by naturalists (and they should know) that a coyote eats upwards of two hundred mice a week, and when you stop to think that one mouse is capable of destroying ten bushels of grain a season, this is no small consideration.

Sure a farmer can go to a lot of foot tramping over his fields poisoning gophers, but what can he do about the mice?

One can sympathize with sheep ranchers with sheep on the range, if coyotes are troublesome, but even in these cases it is probably a certain killer coyote and not the general run of coyotes that do the killing.

The comparatively few chickens lost to coyotes is outweighed by the savings to the farmer from the loss of grain to the mice which the coyotes destroy.

For the farmer's sake let's think of as good a method of keeping the mouse population under control as those that Nature now provides with hawks, owls, weasels and coyotes, before destroying these creatures!

Premier Urges Albertans To Aid in Flood Relief

EDMONTON—Hon. E. C. Manning, Premier of Alberta, called upon all Alberta citizens to contribute to the European Flood Relief Fund.

Mr. Manning in announcing the Alberta Government's support of the fund said that money is needed urgently to relieve the distress of thousands of people now homeless by the storms and floods which struck England, The Netherlands and other European countries early in February.

The people of Alberta gave unhesitatingly to the Winnipeg Flood Relief Fund in 1950 but the present need is greater, the premier said. "The damage, distress and grief caused by the European floods are overwhelming and require a considerably greater effort than that made to help the people of Winnipeg."

He said the urgent need for flood relief funds made it imperative to set up a national organization to canvass for funds. Contributions for flood relief could be made to all branches of chartered banks in Alberta as well as post offices. Similar arrangements have been made for express money orders. Receipts which will be valid for income tax deductions will be issued.

Premier Manning requested the mayors and Reeves of all Alberta municipalities to announce the existence of the Flood Relief Fund and urge the public's support. He emphasized that the appeal for funds is not a Red Cross appeal but the Canadian Red Cross will be the administrative arm of the committee for the distribution of assistance through its International Red Cross channels.

A group of six boys got together for a little card game. But after a young chap, a little "goofy," would come and say something dis-pleasing to us. We decided the next time he'd come and start something like that, we'd leave. This fine evening he comes and says: "Boys, I've read an article in the paper for need of six buns." As we got up and started out, he says, "No hurry, boys, the train doesn't leave for 24 hours."

BREEDING MAKES A DIFFERENCE — These two carcasses are those of test pigs that were treated alike and fed alike on the same feed mixtures at a Department of Agriculture Advanced Registry Test Station. They were the same sex. The one on the left graded A, that on the right B1. The difference between the two is an inherent one of breeding. Note excess fat along back of carcass at right and how this is carried throughout the cross section (below), cut at the last rib from the other side of the same carcass.

TESTING FARM SEED IS WORTH THE TROUBLE

The yield and quality of a harvested crop depends a lot on the quality of the seed that is planted. The only way to know the purity, vitality, weed seed content and sanitation is to test seed before planting. Anyone who feels qualified can make a test of the largest sized seeds, but first, it is necessary to secure a representative sample of the lot of seed to be tested, says George A. Elliott, Assistant Chief, Seed Laboratory Service, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

To find the number of weed seeds, or other foreign seeds in a lot of cereals, take one pound and place it on a table where there is good light and separate the weed and foreign seeds.

All that is required to make a germination test is a five-inch flower pot or other container of similar size. Fill with fine loamy soil and plant 100 seeds to a depth of two inches, keeping the soil sufficiently moist. Most seeds germinate well at ordinary room temperature of about 68 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit, but they should not be placed too near a stove or radiator to become over-heated nor should they be put on the window sill to be chilled at night. A sample of oats or wheat should be ready for a germination count twelve days after the date of planting. Count only those sprouts that are healthy and normal, and this will give the percentage germination.

Mr. Elliott cautions that a farm test of the smaller grass seeds is not so easy. Because they are small it is not a simple task to segregate the weed seeds. The germination test is generally done between special blotters and the sprouts are so minute and brittle that long experience and careful handling is needed to decide which are satisfactory. If the quantity of small seeds warrants the test, it is better to send a sample for analysis to the nearest seed laboratory of the Plant Products Division, Canada Department of Agriculture.

BREEDING MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Selecting breeding stock for more lean and less fat can help in reducing the waste and loss which results from fat hogs. Just as selection has produced the hard-type hog in the United States and the lean bacon-type hog common in Canada, so selection can continue to improve Canadian hogs. Breeding stock is not all alike. Given the same feed and similar conditions, some pigs run to fat and some stay lean and streamlined.

Getting good breeding stock is not easy and no one can guarantee results. Yet in the past 30 years Canadian breeders and farmers have proved that selection for a lean pig is feasible and practical, and they have the facts to prove their case.

At advanced Registry Test Stations of the Federal Department of Agriculture, pure bred breeders send litter groups of four pigs for test. All the groups are fed on similar feed mixtures and are kept under identical conditions at seven centres across Canada. After the hogs are marketed their carcasses are carefully examined and are carcass scored. For a high score, carcasses must have a high high lean and a low fat content and have weight in the right places. Each sow from whose litter the four test pigs were supplied is then given a "sow score," based on the rating of the pig carcasses. Because all other conditions of feeding, housing and the like are similar the sow score indicates the sow's inherent ability to produce a lean bacon-type carcass.

In studying the results of 526 sows tested in this way with their litters farrowed in 1951, 327 or nearly 71 per cent of the sows were scored 75 or over. Eighty-three per cent of the test pigs from these high-score sows graded A carcasses, 16.7 per cent graded B1, and .3 per cent were other grades. Even in the lower group of 154 sows scoring from 50 to 74, the showing was good, with 50.5 per cent Grade A, 47.8 per cent B1 and 1.7 per cent other grades.

Many farmers hold the view that bacon-type pigs are slow, hard feeders, and fat pigs are quick, good feeders. Results at these Test Stations prove the contrary, reports J. G. Lefebvre, who supervises the work. The amount of feed needed per 100 pounds of gain was less for the medium and high-scoring groups than for the lower-scoring groups. In other words the progeny of sows which produced the higher percentage of Grade A carcasses were fed at slightly lower—not higher cost, than the progeny of those which ran to more fat. This is highly important because feed is the biggest item of expense in raising hogs.

Consumers today want lean bacon. No longer do housewives need to render down animal fats for cooking. Various vegetable oils have largely taken the once pre-eminent place of lard in the kitchen, and in doing so have reduced lard to a relatively low-period by-product in terms of a hog carcass. Much of an over-fat hog must be sold as lard which naturally lowers the overall return to the hog producer.

Canadian breeders have sows and boars which combine good litter size and high feed efficiency with a first-class bacon carcass. Tests over the years have proved that it is profitable to use such breeding stock.

FARM ELECTRICAL APPLIANCE CONSUMPTION

Anyone considering a farm electrification program is interested in purchasing appliances that will prove useful in the farming operations and will provide conveniences in the farm home. The monthly power bill for the operation of these appliances, should be directly chargeable to the project for which they are purchased, whether it be poultry, hogs, dairying, beef cattle, the machine shop, and so on. As hydro bills are based on the total kilowatts consumed it is feasible, if the power consumption of each appliance is known approximately, to allot the estimated cost to each enterprise, says M. E. Dodds of Swift Current Experimental Station.

If a dairy is operated on the farm, the 2- and 3-unit milking machines will require about 100 watts per cow per day. Thus, a five cow herd will use a little over 15 kilowatt-hours per month. The cream separator consumes about 1 kilowatt-hour per 1,000 pounds of milk or about 1½ to 2 kilowatt-hours per month.

A variety of equipment is used in the poultry house. Brooders operate at the very low rate of 12½ watt hours per chick per day—about 1½ kilowatt hour for each chick in 40 days. Poultry house lighting, based on 100 birds per month, consumes 5 kilowatt-hours. Water warmers will provide temperature control for drinking water by using 1 kilowatt-hour per day.

Handling and processing equipment, for both farm and household use, is varied. Freezing and cold storage equipment will operate on 2 to 4 kilowatt-hours per day, while the kitchen refrigerator will require 1 to 3 kilowatt-hours, depending on the size, for the same period of time. Feed grinders and hammermills will provide freshly ground feed for ½ to 1 kilowatt-hour of power per 100 bushels of grain processed. Fanning mills will clean grain and use 10 kilowatt-hours per 100 bushels put through. Grain elevators, driven by electric motors, will place grain in bins or trucks and use only 2 kilowatt-hours per 1,000 bushels.

A water pressure system will deliver water to the household, or to the livestock and poultry, at the cheap rate of 2 kilowatt-hours per day, and provide a conversable and can be easily moved from stock man. Where individual water pumps are installed, the consumption is only 1 kilowatt-hour per day. The farm garden can be irrigated from these same systems. To provide hot water for the kitchen and bath, an immersion heater can be installed that will operate for 8 to 15 kilowatt-hours per day, depending upon the size of the unit and the amount of water used. Water warmers for livestock will consume 1 to 5 kilowatt-hours per day, again depending upon the amount of water used.

The machine shop, which is the centre of construction and machinery repair, will find use for small motors to operate power tools. The ½-horsepower motor is very versatile and can be easily moved from machine to machine. These motors use ½ to 1 kilowatt-hour per day of average use. Electric welders are very popular and, based on a year of use, the consumption per day averages ½ kilowatt-hour.

Household appliances are so many and varied that the daily consumption of all but a few of the more common ones would be hard to obtain. Electric ranges consume 4 to 8 kilowatt-hours of power per day, washing machines 3 to 9 kilowatt-hours per month vacuum cleaners 1 to 1½ kilowatt-hours per month and iron 4 kilowatt-hours per month.

From this partial list of the more common appliances, it is possible to make an estimate of what it would cost to operate any combination of them for a month. The information, as given, is intended as a guide and can be used for the calculations when developing a three-to-five-year purchase plan.

Two years back a four-year-old boy was given his first ride on horseback. He was thrilled and when taken off he ran into the house to tell Mama. His mother asked if he wasn't afraid he'd fall off. "Oh no," he said. "I was holding on to the horse's feathers." He meant the mane, of course.

Farm Union Delegation To Meet Wheat Board; Board Of Grain Commissioners

Arrangements were made for a delegation representing the three Prairie Farm Unions to meet the Board of Grain Commissioners on February 23rd and the Canadian Wheat Board on February 24th. These meetings were held in Winnipeg.

At these meetings the Union representatives discussed with the respective Boards, matters of policy and administration in regard to grain handling, grading and marketing, overages etc. The viewpoint of the Unions on various aspects of these problems were presented by a delegation headed by Mr. J. L. Preps, chairman of the Interprovincial Council of the Farm Unions, and President of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union. He is supported by members of the Alberta and Manitoba Union Executive. In addition the Saskatchewan Union sent a number of union officials from each district at observer.

Interprovincial Conference

The Annual Interprovincial Conference of the Farm Unions will be held in Alberta this year immediately following the Calgary Stampede. Arrangements are being made to hold this event in Calgary on July 13 and 14. It is expected that speakers of national and international importance will be assembled at the event.

Provincial Resolutions

On Feb. 6 the resolutions of a Provincial nature passed by the Annual Convention together with those from the recent Board meeting were presented to a committee of the Provincial Cabinet headed by Hon. D. Ure, Minister of Agriculture. The FUA delegation consisted of Mrs. Taylor, President of the FWUA, FUA President Henry Young, Vice-President Carl Stimpfle, Mrs. J. H. Hurd, FWUA vice-president and Rudolph Henke.

In all, some 75 resolutions were presented and a free exchange of views took place.

While the discussions were amicable and on a high plane, present maintained their tough, most of the cabinet members and uncompromising attitude toward some of the main proposals of the FUA. Evidently the FUA must develop further strength in order to get satisfactory action.

LETTERS TO LOUISA

Dear Louisa,

I have been married a year and we are still living with my husband's parents, although he said we would stay there just a few months until we could find an apartment or house.

Now, I know it is cheaper to stay

The Wild-Out—Our Worst Weed

The Wild Out, it is generally agreed, is the worst weed in Western Canada.

During the last 7 or 8 years there has been a tremendous increase in the incidence of weed control due to the development of various weed control chemicals. Most of the common broad-leaved weeds can now be controlled effectively and economically by chemical means. So the wild out has remained free of being affected by any chemical except the more costly soil sterilants.

Many Chemists Tested. This situation may not, however, last much longer. A Weed investigator, encouraged by their success with chemicals on other weeds and alarmed by the terrible losses due to wild oats, are concentrating their efforts toward the development of a chemical that will control this costly weed. In the meantime cultural methods provide the only means of controlling wild oats.

Cultural Control. A study of wild oat seeds shows that they germinate readily during the cool weather of early Spring. Few will germinate, however, after the temperature of the soil has reached 50°F or higher. This occurs usually between May 15 and June 1st, depending on the season. Early Spring tillage and delayed seeding of an early maturing crop will destroy many wild oats, and allow a relatively clean crop to be grown even on heavily infested fields.

Clean, Good Seed Important. Seed drill surveys have shown that millions of wild oat seeds are returned to the soil in "dirty" seed each year in Western Canada. Clean, high-germinating, properly treated seed is a vital link in weed control. Good seed and efficient and timely cultivation will reduce the population of wild oats and other weeds in growing crops, and make for a better, more prosperous agriculture in Western Canada.

Copies of our revised circular "Wild-Out Control by Cultural Methods" may be obtained, free of charge, through local Line Elevator Agents or from Line Elevators Farm Service, Winnipeg or Calgary.

with his parents and I like them but I don't want to continue to live with them.

I want a home of my own where I can have the color curtains I like and the kind of food I like and where I can be by myself when I want to. But my husband keeps putting me off. I think he has got used to being in this home and he doesn't want to leave it.

What can I do to make him realize that we would be happier in a home of our own?

Answer:

If he promised to get you an apartment or house before you were married, you can remind him of his promise and go out and look for a place, yourself.

All young couples are happier in a place of their own if they are financially able to afford it. Perhaps if you do the looking and find a suitable place, he will stand by his word.

Louisa.

Dear Louisa,

I am seventeen years old and two men have asked me to marry them. The one I like the best hasn't got a job and my mother likes the other one because he has money.

Do you think I could learn to love him? He treats me fine.

S. R.

Answer:

Don't marry either one.

You are not ready for marriage and the two chances you have are not good bets at all. Certainly you don't want to marry a man who hasn't a job. It's easier to work for one than it is for two or more. And as for marrying a man you don't love just because he has money, that's a good way to buy unhappiness.

You are young and have many more years in which to choose a mate. So don't make the mistake of jumping at the first chance you have.

Louisa.
